1	Fox renewal / how Fox might play into the consortium, if at all		Complete		The Fox contract ends in 2018, and UFC will have full flexibility to negotiate a new contract with content distributors. The media rights value increase is based on the phenomenal ratings performance of UFC's content currently on Fox and precedent sports media rights renewals for other major leagues (NBA, NHL, NFL, etc.) and expected competition for the rights; see teaser page 8. We would note that the UFC is currently significantly under monetizing the value of its rights when compared to other major sports leagues. Currently and as per the NDA, each potential buyer group is only permitted to review the opportunity independently. As the process develops Raine can facilitate introductions between parties where appropriate.
2	Tax status and how that might be impacted by the acquisition		Complete		Currently, Zuffa, the 100% owner of the UFC, is a limited liability company. An acquisition would result in a significant step-up of tax-basis that would create a large tax-asset for the buyer. Each buyer will have to determine the exact value of this tax-asset and what other tax implications the acquisition will have upon the Company. We should discuss this point in more detailed on a call.
